

I am concerned about Sinclair Broadcasting's decision which is to use their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary before the election. This is a dangerous precedent in a free society. Radio stations have an obligation to present factual and non-biased information to their listeners, or identify it as a political ad.

Public airwaves are meant to serve the public interest not represent a political position, particularly right before a close election. We need local stations to present issues that matter in our communities and fair and unbiased information about national issues.

Thank you.
